PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Learn to systematically integrate culture into your leadership and coaching with individuals, teams, and organizations to make the most of alternative cultural perspectives for expanded awareness, greater creativity, increased unity, and sustainable high-performance.

In our multicultural and fast-changing environment, it is essential to embrace diversity, bridge cultural gaps, learn from cultural differences for more creativity, allowing us to act responsibly, overcome divisions, live meaningfully and strive for internal and external unity.

Leadership and coaching that integrates multiple perspectives is a powerful vehicle for enabling sustainable and global success for ourselves and others.

The program focuses on the cultural perspective in the context of a broader vision that also integrates physical, managerial, psychological, political and spiritual perspectives. The objective of the program is to equip leaders, HR professionals, coaches, supervisors, trainers and consultants to systematically integrate the cultural dimension into their work. The program is also destined for interculturalists eager to integrate coaching into their practice.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

In this program, we consider coaching both as a profession and as a leadership philosophy (i.e., the readiness to facilitate the deployment of human potential to achieve important and significant results).

Traditional coaching has implicitly reflected particular norms, values and basic assumptions that do not necessarily hold true universally. However, from notions of time to patterns of communication, all human endeavors are influenced by culture.

Building upon Philippe Rosinski's seminal book "Coaching Across Cultures", this program will allow you to weave culture into your coaching practice so it can become fully effective in today's intercultural environment. Moreover, you will discover how intercultural coaching can be positioned in the context of an even more ambitious vision for coaching, which also integrates physical, managerial, psychological, political, and spiritual perspectives.

You will become certified to use and administer the Cultural Orientations Framework (COF) assessment, a roadmap and tool to navigate the cultural terrain. While still allowing comparison of individual profiles with various national cultures, the COF assessment has a much broader scope. It aims at helping individuals grow by learning from cultural differences of various kinds. Culture here consists of all the characteristics we have acquired along the way, by interacting with various groups of people and being part of different cultural groups (family, generation, profession, company, country, religion, etc.). The COF assessment can be viewed as an equivalent, at the cultural level, to a personality assessment such as the MBTI®.

With its 17 dimensions (and more that can be added on a custom basis), the COF allows us to become aware of our inevitable biases (e.g., how we communicate, think, manage time, organize ourselves, deal with power and responsibility), and to go beyond potentially limiting norms, values, and beliefs.

The COF permits discovery of new options to increase versatility, creativity, and effectiveness. Its underlying dynamic and inclusive view of culture, enables us to build unity in diversity by leveraging cultural differences.

In sum, you will learn how to address today's complexities and achieve lasting and meaningful success by integrating diverse viewpoints to build innovative solutions, forge effective partnerships and service multiple stakeholders.

PROGRAM CONTENT

Enriching Coaching with Interculturalism

Moving beyond cultural stereotyping, you'll hear about a dynamic and inclusive concept of culture. You'll discover that Coaching Across Cultures/Intercultural Coaching enables more effective work across cultures (not only in an international sense) as well as constitutes a more creative and complete form of coaching (challenging our cultural assumptions and propelling us beyond previous limitations). You'll find out about the various attitudes we can adopt vis-à-vis cultural differences (Bennett-Rosinski 7-stage model), culminating with leveraging cultural differences. You'll learn about the Cultural Orientations Framework (COF), a roadmap to navigate the cultural terrain and become aware of salient cultural characteristics for individuals, teams, and organizations.

Leveraging Diversity for Individual Development

You'll practice peer coaching to examine your COF results. You'll become aware of your cultural orientations and how these tend to impact your coaching. You'll discover growth opportunities in the form of underused cultural orientations. Raising your own cultural awareness will allow you to systematically integrate culture and the COF assessment into your one-on-one coaching engagements and leadership interactions.

Furthermore, you'll engage in peer coaching to address your challenging situations. This will be an opportunity to practice coaching in a safe environment, to exchange developmental feedback and to uncover links with culture as well as opportunities to integrate culture more intentionally into your coaching.

Addressing Complexity with Global Coaching

You'll discover how Coaching Across Cultures can be positioned in the broader context of Global Coaching. This integrated coaching approach involves coaching from multiple perspectives, which is needed to promote sustainable and meaningful success in today's complexity. You'll find out about how to enhance your coaching practice as well as possibly transform your life by considering six interconnected perspectives: physical, managerial, psychological, political, cultural, and spiritual. You'll learn how your coaching can be informed by various disciplines and cultures, thereby promoting sustainable and meaningful success for you, your clients and all the people you can positively impact.

Leveraging Diversity for Team, Organizational, and Societal Development

You'll discover how cultural diversity can be a double-edge sword in teams, mergers & acquisitions, strategic alliances as well as for the transformative partnerships required to promote the 17 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. Cultural diversity, when not adequately managed, can hamper teamwork and derail promising organizational development ventures. However, you'll learn about research findings as well as real-life case studies illustrating how intercultural coaching using the COF can promote instead synergies and sustainable success.

You'll find out about three complementary forms of diversity (external/demographic, internal/cognitive and implicit/hidden) and how to get more from D&I programs by unleashing the full potential in diversity.

You'll work on a case study about a merger between two companies, exploring cultural similarities and cultural differences, and pondering specific recommendations to make this venture a success. You'll discuss the case in subgroups, aiming to come to consensus on your analysis and recommendations. In the group debrief, you'll reflect on your team process, exploring your cultural group dynamics and uncovering ways to build unity in diversity. Moreover, throughout the seminar, you'll engage in a team activity, living the challenges of working in a diverse and remote team, and experiencing how to turn the obstacles into an opportunity and the richness that ensues.

Becoming COF Certified and part our International LCAC Alumni Community

In addition to learning and practicing with the COF in the context of individual, team, organizational and societal development, you'll discover the COF assessment's various features and how to set up and use the tool in practice.

Beyond the seminar, you'll have the chance -at no additional cost- to connect with over 500 LCAC Alumni around the world, via dedicated LinkedIn and WhatsApp groups, bimonthly LCAC Alumni online gatherings and the opportunity to become COF Master Certified.

ABOUT THE COF™ ASSESSMENT

Preferred choice for many users

'We selected Rosinski's COF as a conceptual framework and primary assessment tool for several reasons (cultural categories transcend typical categorization, team profile can be utilized for future initiatives, cost effectiveness...). Other models were considered, however the COF framework seemed particularly designed for coaches to have coaching conversations that facilitate leveraging cultural differences and creating new possibilities.'

Dr. C Carr, PCC and L Seto, PCC (Canada), International Journal of Evidence Based Coaching and Mentoring

Multidimensional and flexible

With its 17 dimensions (more can be added on a custom basis), the COF allows us to become aware of our inevitable biases (e.g., how we communicate, think, manage time, organize ourselves, deal with power and responsibility), and to go beyond potentially limiting norms, values and beliefs. The COF allows discovery of new options to increase versatility, creativity and effectiveness. Its underlying dynamic and inclusive view of culture, enables us to build unity in diversity by leveraging cultural differences.

Different scope from traditional intercultural assessment tools

While still allowing comparison of individual profile with various national cultures, the COF assessment has a much broader scope. The COF assessment aims at helping individuals grow by learning from cultural differences of various kinds. Culture here consists of all the characteristics we have acquired along the way, by interacting with various groups of people and being part of different cultural groups (family, generation, profession, company, country, religion, etc.). The COF assessment can be viewed as an equivalent, at the cultural level, to a personality assessment such as the MBTI.

The COF assessment is available in Chinese, Dutch, English, French, German, Japanese, Portuguese, Spanish, Russian and Czech.

Leveraging cultural diversity to promote creativity and innovation in teams

“One of our central themes is the immense importance of diversity, not necessarily along demographic lines, but in terms of ideas and perspectives. We are speaking above all of cognitive diversity.

One of the particular advantages of diversity and dissent is that they promote two things that institutions need: creativity and innovation.”

Cass Sunstein (Harvard University Professor) and Reid Hastie - "Wiser - Getting beyond groupthink to make groups smarter" (2015)

From Culture as a threat to Culture as an opportunity in M&As “Cultural integration is hard. Nearly 50% of our respondents listed cultural fit or difficulty integrating management teams as a primary reason why their past deals had failed.”

Bain & Company, 2023
M&A Practitioners' 2023 Outlook Survey

“The problem is not the cultural differences per se; it is being unprepared to deal with them. In the preparation phase of a deal, it is important to assess firms' respective cultures, and design the M&A process to bridge any gaps.”

How to Capitalize On the Coming M&A Wave
Nuno Fernandes, HBR.org, February 2021

Enabling successful transformational partnerships to advance SDGs

“The irony is, the more different organizations are, the more potential there is for bigger gain but at the same time, the more difficult it will be to implement the partnerships.”

Ricardo Bosshard, WWF Chile

TESTIMONIALS

'Leading and Coaching Across Cultures was a wonderful learning experience. The Cultural Orientations Framework offers a powerful and versatile framework, with which to better understand and leverage the potential of cultural differences across individuals and groups. The program was carefully curated to be a blend of theoretical inputs coupled with hands-on practical application of concepts – the diversity and multicultural nature of my program cohort was in itself a rich source of insights. I'm looking forward to applying the tools and concepts I've learnt, on both my coaching assignments, as well as in my organizational work context which involves communication and change management across multiple geographies and organizations.'

Raj Dharmaraj, India

'A very interesting session that not only provides practical tools but also opens up mind and generate inspiration.'

David Chen | Chief Human Resources Officer SUEZ Asia, Hong Kong

'I had the pleasure to participate in Philippe`s COF certification seminar. With several other international coaches and HR specialists we experienced high qualified learning and exercising. Philippe is combining theory and pragmatic examples in a unique way. He is an expert in his field and connects in a wonderful way to his audience. I enjoyed every minute..'

Dr. Bettina Al-Sadik-Lowinski | Author, International Executive Coach, Germany

'It is an amazing tool that Philippe is bringing into the world. It helps families, teams and organizations to really start to understand each other, to appreciate & leverage similarities and differences, and to become more powerful in the way that they work together.'
